

SWISS ENDURO SERIES – HERE'S WHERE YOU CAN HELP!

TRACK OFFICIAL

Here you'll be right at the heart of the racing action. During training and the race, you'll monitor a section of the track and report incidents such as crashes or track damage to the race control team. From your position, you'll experience the athletes up close and gain a unique insight into enduro racing.

Days on duty: Saturday & Sunday

COURSE MANAGER

You'll be responsible for organising and ensuring the smooth running of a stage from start to finish. You'll coordinate the stage team, act as the point of contact for race control and ensure that training and races are conducted safely and on schedule. You'll maintain an overview at all times and make a crucial contribution to the success of your stage.

Days on duty: Saturday & Sunday

COURSE SET-UP, SIGNALLING & TRAIL MAINTENANCE

You'll be helping the organising committee to mark out, signpost and secure the race courses. Together, we'll ensure that the athletes are guided safely and fairly through the stages. You enjoy being outdoors and are happy to get stuck in physically.

Days on duty: Tuesday & Wednesday (before the race)

MEDICAL / FIRST AID

You'll support our rescue and safety team along the route. In the event of minor injuries, you'll administer first aid and assist with communication with the relevant emergency services. For this role, relevant knowledge or experience is an advantage.

Days on duty: Saturday & Sunday

EVENT HUB & ORGANISATION

You'll be helping us with various organisational tasks at the start, finish and event site. This includes, for example, running refreshment stations or assisting with general event tasks.

Days on duty: Friday, Saturday & Sunday

ALLROUNDER

You'll help out wherever support is needed at the time. Whether along the route, at the event hub or with organisational tasks. You'll pitch in flexibly and help ensure the event runs smoothly.

Days on duty: Saturday & Sunday

IT DOESN'T MATTER – I'LL HELP WHERE I'M NEEDED

You'd like to help, but are open to whatever role is available? Perfect! We'll deploy you flexibly and on an on-call basis wherever your support adds the most value to SES Saastal.

Days on duty: Tuesday to Sunday
