Meeting Marmots

Dear guests

A warm welcome to the Saas-Fee/Saastal holiday region – home of the marmots!

Although the marmots here often seem friendly, they are still wild animals.

To ensure they continue to thrive and remain protected, we ask you to be aware of a few important rules.

Marmots are real foodies.

Please feed them only carrots. Other food is harmful to them.

Don't be too loud!

Marmots have very sensitive ears. Loud noises can startle them.

Don't stroke them!

They are wild animals. Please give them space and avoid sudden movements.

Please take your rubbish with you.

Help to protect nature and the marmots. Rubbish can harm wildlife.

Do not throw anything into the marmot burrows or look inside them.

These burrows are their home and shelter. Please respect their space. That's where they feel safe.

Please take photos without using the flash.

The flash of the camera startles the marmots.

Always watch your step!

Don't stand on top of marmot burrows to protect the animals and yourself.

Enjoy your time with the marmots, and don't forget: Patience is key!
